I would like to highly recommend Sellers General Construction, specifically for the construction of a general dental office. I recently went through this process of construction of a new dental office and Seller construction made the process very easy and stress free. I primarily talked with Jay and Tyler, they were easy to get in touch with and available for any questions that I had.

When I started the process of looking for a contractor to build a dental office I was pleased to find out that Sellers had some experience in the dental field. I started planning the new building and discussed the construction with Jay for about a year and a half before starting the project. Once the project started, even with the challenges of the Covid-19 pandemic, Jay kept us on schedule and I was able to move in before my target date. Jay worked closely with my equipment sales rep, who helped design the building, and they made sure everything was in place and ready to install all of my equipment. It was critical to me that I be able to schedule the move over the weekend, so I would not lose the production. Everything had to be in place for the move to go smoothly, and we completed the move over one weekend with no issues from equipment installation.

If you are thinking of building a dental office, I would highly recommend Sellers General Construction. The best part about working with Jay and Tyler is that they are available, questions and concerns come up in every construction project, but the ability to quickly discuss and address the concerns is invaluable.
